Thanks to the Eric P. Newman Numismatic Research Foundation for the support to bring this project to completion.

To the diocesan archivists who assisted with this project.

To curators at the American Numismatic Society who were with me at the start of this project in the 1980s and their new MACO Specimen Archive from The Medallic Art Company Archives. The medal cabinet at the Vatican Numismatic Collection assisted recently.

To Douglas Domingo-Foraste and Harry Waterson for reading this document and making very helpful suggestions.

To my fellow collectors, curators and dealers who assisted me along the way (alphabetically): Allen G. Berman, Paul Bosco, Thomas Casper, Robert DeNaro, Richard Jewell, Scott H. Miller, Chris Papadakis, Normand H. Pepin, Dr. Ira Rezak, David E. Schenkman, Dr. Alan M. Stahl, Harry Waterson, Heath White; and those collectors who have gone before us: Vincent Alones, Rev. Edward J. Hogan, S.J., D. Wayne Johnson, Thomas Lawless, H. Joseph Levine, Richard Margolis, Philip Medicus, Julius Turoff, Thomas Wilfred.

INTRODUCTION

Baltimore was created as the first diocese in the United States in 1789. The dioceses of Mexico City and Quebec had control over the western and southern areas of what is now the United States. As the population of the United States grew, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Bardstown (KY) were created as dioceses in 1808 and Baltimore elevated to an archdiocese. In 1841, the seat of the diocese of Bardstown, KY was moved to Louisville, KY and the name of the diocese was changed to Louisville. Since then the United States is now home to 32 territorial archdioceses and 144 territorial dioceses in addition, the Archdiocese for the Military Services serves members of the U.S. armed forces and diplomatic corps. The states of Hawaii, Idaho, Rhode Island, Utah and West Virginia have only one diocese, all other states have multiple dioceses within their boundaries.

METHODOLOGY

I reached out to collectors via notices in The Numismatist (American Numismatic Association magazine), The Centinel (Central States Numismatic Society magazine), The Clarion (Pennsylvania Association of Numismatists magazine), and the E-Sylum (National Bibliomania Society weekly email newsletter). Contact was made with the 90 archdiocesan and diocesan archivists who I knew issued medals to clarify their issues, and to the 100 archdiocesan and diocesan archivists who I have not observed medal issues to discover new issues and clarify that in other cases no medals have been issued. I have also contacted several seminaries who I am personally aware of that hold coin collections for information. Ebay and Esty listings provided several listings. Finally I reached out to the American Numismatic Society and Vatican Museum Numismatic Cabinet.

WHAT IS INCLUDED, WHAT IS NOT

My parameters for a listing in this catalog include commemorative medalets and medals ranging in size from ½ inch to over 8 inches issued without a hole or an integral loop which depict a portrait or cathedral view. I have listed medals with holes when they were intended to have a jump ring and suspended from a ribbon and/or a pinback suspension bar – as in a badge. Medalets with an integral loop issued as event commemoratives are also included, but I have tried not to list medals with an integral loop (often paired with saints) which serve as devotional items, key rings, plain ribbon badges or pinback buttons. Medals issued by the Knights of Columbus organization are generally not included unless they include a cathedral façade or bishop's portrait or coat of arms.

If a medal design was issued in different metals, but the same size, the metal varieties are listed together. If a design was issued in two different sizes, then they are given two listings.

LISTING FORMAT

I have used standard numismatic description formats. First is the obverse legend or inscription in all uppercase letters with a / to designate line breaks; then on a new indented line is the obverse description.

Following is the reverse legend or inscription in uppercase letters and then on a new indented line is the reverse description. The next line begins with the metal, information on the planchet (holed, integral loop, ribbon colors) strike information (proof-like), and then the size in millimeters (if a rectangle first is length than height). Mintage figures if known followed by the artist name and the mint name, city, and state (or country).

COMMON TERMS USED IN THIS CATALOG

The term legend is used when the text goes around the edge of the medal. When the text is linear, the term inscription is used.

The administrative area for a bishop is a diocese, and an archbishop is in charge of an archdiocese; several diocesan bishops often report to an archbishop. A cardinal is a title which can be conferred upon any ordained clergy whether or not in an administrative position of archbishop (abbots, clergy, teachers are examples). Cardinals act as advisors to the Pope, and upon his death those under the age of 80 vote for the successor pope.

I use the term cathedral (or church) façade when the building is alone or cathedral view when the building is shown among others. This could be a rendering front facing, 3/4, or side view of the building.

When the term integral loop is used, the loop is struck as part of the planchet. When the term holed is used, it was holed after striking and then a suspension would be needed for attachment to a ribbon.

When I use the term head left or right, it is a rendering of a head from the neck up. I use the term bust (profile, 3/4) left or right when it includes part of the torso. It is expected that a clergy member is dressed in a suit jacket or cassock appropriate to his rank. If the clergy member is wearing vestments (as would be worn at Mass), that is noted. Sometimes when bishops and archbishops are dressed in the clerical cassock, they are depicted wearing a short hat (biretta) with a pom-pom at the top center; a cardinal's biretta does not include the pom-pom. Sometimes the portrait includes a skullcap; this is called a zucchetto.

*Archbishop Philip Hannan
wearing vestments and mitre*

Michael Curley as archbishop, wearing biretta

Cardinal Dougherty wearing biretta

Cardinal Cooke with Zucchetto

Dioceses have an identifying shield often surmounted by a mitre (the pointed hat). Since the 1920s a bishop, archbishop, or cardinal has a coat of arms (a shield halved, left side depicting the design of the diocesan arms and right side his personal arms all of which is surmounted by a mitre and a crozier with a processional cross at center just below the wide-brimmed hat). If the arms of an auxiliary bishop are depicted in the modern format, it is just the personal arms (no sharing with a diocesan shield, no mitre and crozier (the hooked staff) between the top of the shield and the wide-brimmed hat). Also, early coats of arms were not halved with the diocese identification. A cardinal associated with a Vatican office has his coat of arms without diocese identification. On any of these personal coats of arms the shield is surmounted by the wide-brimmed clerical hat (gallero) with tassels on each side. That of a bishop has three tassels on the bottom row, archbishop has four tassels and a cardinal has five tassels.

Diocesan seminaries have issued medals and those are listed under the diocese in which the seminary is located.

Photos of medals are not always to scale. Accurate measurements are included in the listings but photo sizes are adjusted to accommodate page composition or enlarged to show detail.

Although extensive research has been done over many years to ensure as many items as possible would be included in this presentation, omissions will occur. Please correspond with your questions and high-resolution images to the author at George.cuhaj@yahoo.com and updates will be made as necessary.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Medals are listed chronologically by diocese. Dioceses are listed in alphabetical order. Dioceses are not grouped together by state. The state is only indicated when the diocese name occurs in more than one state.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY OF AMERICA

The Catholic University of America holds a fundraising event called the American Cardinal's Dinner held during the spring meeting of the United States Conference of Bishops. The medal depicts the coat of arms of the host Archbishop or Cardinal of the diocese holding the conference meetings. These medals are listed under that diocese, but I am including here the annual list of meeting locations as an index so you can find them in the main catalog section.
